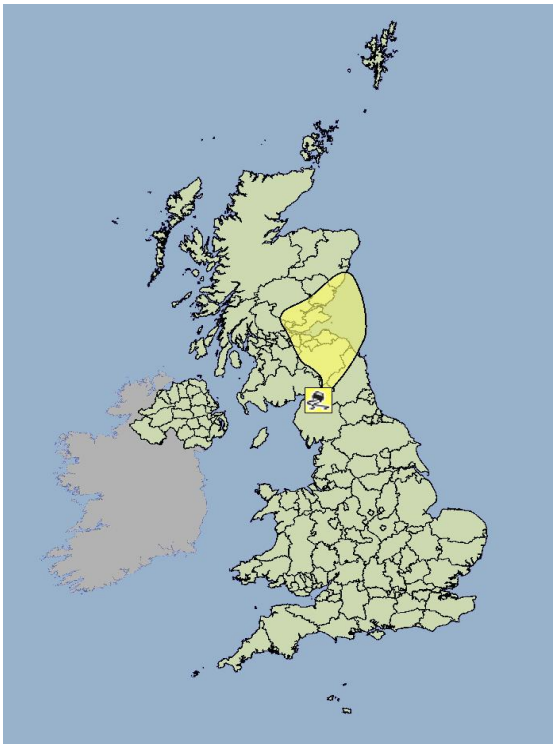
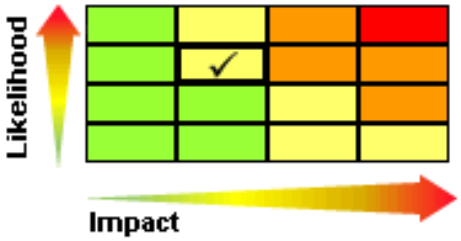
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Following the clearance of an area of rain and snow, ice will form on untreated surfaces Friday evening and persist into Saturday morning.
Despite a cold day then on Saturday surface temperatures are expected to rise above freezing during the morning allowing ice to melt.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 00:05 on Sat, 17th Mar 2018 until 09:00 on Sat, 17th Mar 2018

Ice is expected to remain on some untreated roads, pavements and cycle paths into Saturday morning.

Some injuries are possible from slips and falls on icy surfaces. Some longer journey times are also possible by road, bus and train services with some lying snow persisting from Friday evening.
